Mr Steevens borrowed this volume from me in 1779, to peruse the Rape of Lucrece in the original edition, of which he was not possessed. When he returned it, he made this drawing. — I was then confidedly a son Thomas, and attended by the Attorney the Apothecary, & whom the above figure when Shakspeare addresses, is a caricature.

E. M.